Our legislators deserve blame for phone bills

Your local telephone bill may be going up soon, and you can blame your state legislators if it happens.

Actually, if you own a small business in Illinois and Ameritech is your local telephone company, then you've already been hit with a rate hike.

That's because the Illinois General Assembly passed a law that changed the way local telephone companies were regulated. Up until then companies like Ameritech were limited to a profit of no more than 4 percent on the money it took in.

But hey, this is America and the companies understandably wanted more. So Ameritech came up with a great idea for accomplishing its goal.

Ameritech would allow the Illinois Commerce Commission to set its rates, but it wanted the freedom to do so as much as possible.

In return, the company offered to freeze residential rates for three years, and it promised the law would usher in a new era of lower rates for consumers.

It sounded good, but every consumer group in the state bitterly opposed the proposal.

They claimed that some new technology Ameritech had installed after its last big rate increase was on the verge of drastically lowering its operating costs, which would mean a big rate cut for consumers under existing law.

The consumer groups also believed the plan was so full of holes that Ameritech would easily find a way to eventually raise its rates. The bill passed anyway.

Well, the consumer advocates were right. After the bill passed, Ameritech cut off thousands of its employees and cut its operating costs drastically. The company greatly increased its profits, at least partly because of its new technology, just as the consumer groups had predicted.

Ameritech has experienced double-digit earnings growth every year since the bill became law.

Ameritech also found a way around its rate caps, which consumer groups like the Citizens Utility Board also had warned about.

The law allows Ameritech basically to declare that it is no longer a regulated monopoly. If just one area company offers the same individual service as Ameritech, like voice mail or local long distance, then Ameritech can file a form with the Commerce Commission that reads, essentially, "We're not a monopoly." When that happens, Ameritech is allowed to set whatever rates it wants. The ICC can challenge the company's declaration, but it has only done so when prodded by the Citizens Utility Board.

Just about every time that Ameritech has shed its monopoly status on individual services it has increased its rates on those services.

Ameritech can almost always raise its prices and still charge less than its so-called "competitors," who have to pay for high-priced start-up costs and often lease lines from Ameritech itself.

According to CUB, Ameritech quietly declared in September that just about all of the services it provides small businesses were no longer monopolies. The ICC, for whatever reason, didn't challenge the declaration.

A month later my wife showed me the local phone bill for our small business. It had gone up through the roof. This must be a mistake, I told her. The off-peak rate we had been charged for years — for calls made at night and on the weekends (our business faxes out about 1,500 pages a night) — had jumped a mind-boggling 70 percent.

I called Ameritech to complain that they had screwed up my bill. No, the courteous Ameritech employee informed me, my bill was correct. Ameritech had changed its rates.

CUB was already aware of the situation and plans to demand that the ICC reconsider its decision to allow Ameritech out from under its regulated rates. CUB believes that if Ameritech wins this fight, it will do the same with residential rates in the very near future.

Using the phone on the weekends and at night will get a lot more expensive for everyone if that happens. We have to increase my political newsletter's price to cover the many thousands of dollars that this Ameritech thing is costing me.

I'm not angry with Ameritech. It maximized its profits, which is what any red-blooded American company would do. No, my ire is directed elsewhere.

My newsletter has always given state legislators a discount. Not anymore. They wrote the law, they can pay the bill.

COMMENTS FROM CAROL

Definition of morality depends on who you ask

Cleaning out some old files and clips recently, I found a annual holiday season. Not a funny one, but relevant to a subject that has been bugging me for some time.

The cartoon depicts Santa Claus sitting on a kid on his lap and a smiling child of other youngsters. Santa to kid: "Have you been a moral child?" Not "good or bad," but "moral." But that stopped the kid dead in his tracks!

I can speak only for myself, but when I was still young enough to have faith in the Jolly Old Elf, "good" or "bad" would have done it. Obedient, polite, well-behaved (or their opposites) I would have understood, but "moral" wasn't a word often around our house.

I wouldn't have understood what Santa meant, but then, I suppose he means "moral" either do a whole lot of adults who seem to be hung up on it.

Generally speaking today, interpretation seems to be primarily dealing with sexual behavior, and at least in my family, our parents did not discuss these matters with us brothers and me. It was purely factual. Morality didn't really enter into the talks, aside from "nice girls don't..." from Mom. I never asked Dad what Dad had to say on the subject.

My thesaurus defines "moral" as: upright, virtuous, ethical, good, upstanding, scrupulous, honorable, honest, principled, trustworthy, fair, decent, conscientious, correct, aboveboard, just, "Sexual virtue" gets second-place definition.

Our parents, by the time we entered school, had pretty well established what was expected of us. The stress was on family, trust, respect, principles, honesty, and treating others kindly.

Now that both of us didn't fall from grace on those counts now and then, but we knew very well what was expected of us. Religion, by the way, didn't enter the picture in our home-teaching.

Thus, as an adult, I'm greatly troubled by the attitudes of some so-called righteous moralists in the face of violent crimes. Two recent examples come to mind.

Recall the torture and murder of the young University of

Get rid of filth on TV

Recently on the news, the Catholics are complaining of the obnoxious and vulgar scripts of certain TV programs. Where are all the other religious leaders and are they condoning all the filth that's on the TV today? Why aren't they doing something about it?

Carol Clarkin

before being discovered.

The follow-up on the part of some could scarcely be called decent or virtuous. The father of one of the accused young men told reporters that sure, his son shouldn't have beaten and killed the girl, but after all, she was the one who blamed him — the guy was queer. There's justification for you.

Then there were the members of a Wyoming area church who attended Shepard's funeral procession carrying the hate signs and church banners and distributing them following the service from the Christian fundamentalist school, Bob Jones University, in South Carolina, to arrest all gay alumni who have the temerity to return to the campus. They will be allowed to visit the school's art museum, which is operated by a separate non-profit organization.

Separate, of course, was the first victim of a hate crime and there won't be the last, and whether or not hate-crime legislation will help is debatable, but it's a step in the right direction. There always will be those who hate, whether their enmity is aimed at gays or other members of other religions than their own, regardless of your name.

Meanwhile, a word to those who want for a better term are called the "Religious Right" and who would improve my morals: Stay away from my door!

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

If a husband and wife are divorced, the custodial parent sometimes wishes to move from the state of Illinois following the divorce. In most of these cases, the non-custodial parent will resist this move because it normally means less visitation time for this parent. The courts in these situations must decide on a case by case basis whether such a move is in the "best interests of the child".

In one recent case, a husband and wife, William and Judy, were married in 1984. They had two daughters, ages 10 and 12. When the couple were awarded a divorce, joint custody of the parties two minor children was awarded, with Judy serving as the primary custodial parent.

In December of 1994, Judy filed a petition to remove her two minor children to Ohio. She had a job offer in Ohio, and this position paid $600.00 per week. In addition, she had met a chiropractor who resided in Ohio, and they were engaged to be married.

Her ex-husband opposed the move. He pointed out that he was very close to his daughters, and that the girls also visited their grandparents in Illinois on a regular basis.

William coached the basketball and softball teams for one of his daughters, and he also talked on the telephone to them several times per week. The oldest child testified that she did not want to move to Ohio.

What is a court to do in this situation? The mother has a job opportunity and is engaged, and the father would lose his close relationship with his daughters if the mother moved out of state.

The trial court in this case concluded that while Judy's quality of life would improve with a move to Ohio, any indirect benefit to the girls would be offset by the negative effect the move would have on the children. The trial court noted that the girls were well-adjusted and doing well in school. Furthermore, they had strong family and social ties to Illinois, and they were involved in a variety of extracurricular activities. Most importantly, the trial court felt it was unable to justify the requested visitation schedule for the father if the move were allowed. Given the totality of the circumstances in this case, the trial court refused to allow removal of the children to Ohio.

Church of Christ offers Thanksgiving services

The members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, invite the public to join them on Thanksgiving with hymns, prayer, and expressions of gratitude to God. The church is located at 1000 North Avenue, Granite City.

These services will be conducted by lay members who will read a Lesson-Sermon from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, the discover and founder of Christian Science.

They will focus on the assurance of God's goodness and protection and will include these passages: "And God is able to make all grace abound toward you" (II Corinthians 9:8); and "O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth." (Psalms 67:4) Following the sermon, there will be time for testimonies of healing and gratitude appropriate to the occasion. A service will be approximately one hour. Care will be provided for children too young to attend. No collection will be taken.

As the study of the Bible has been prominent throughout the United States, it is fitting that this season of gratitude marks the observance of National Bible Week, Nov. 22-29.

The Christian Science Reading Room, located at 2000 Delmar (on 26th St. Side) is featuring Bible displays focusing on the King James Version of the Bible. Numerous Bible study references are also available.

RideFinders honors area residents

Lung Association official among those cited at Clean Air luncheon

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Collinsville resident Karen Lanter was among those accepting awards at the Foundation's annual Recognition Awards luncheon sponsored by RideFinders.

More than a dozen awards were presented at the event, held Saturday at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in St. Louis Union Station.

Lanter, of the American Lung Association of Illinois, accepted the Outstanding Contribution Awards presented. Also winning the award was the American Lung Association of Eastern Missouri.

The awards honors individuals, companies and organizations that have contributed to the regional effort to improve air quality.

RideFinders — which serves a seven-county area on both sides of the Mississippi River federal Congestion Mitigation Air Quality money, and is administered by the Madison County Transit District.

"Because of your commitment, we've seen continued growth in the number of organizations, employers and individuals who have taken steps to become a part of the solution to our air quality problems," said Program Manager Jane Smith.

Since starting in 1993, the number of commuters in RideFinders' database has risen to almost 13,000, and more than 3,500 commuters using alternative modes of transportation are registered with the organization.

"These increases are great for the individual pocketbooks, but they also help the environment in the St. Louis region," she said. "The increased number of our pools and individuals translates into a reduction of millions of single-occupant vehicle miles traveled, which kept tons of pollutants out of the air over St. Louis during the past year."

Other awards included:

Car Pool — Red Fischer of South St. Louis County, who has been car pooling to work for the United States Postal Service in St. Louis for 36 years.

Van Pool — Greg Holden of Florissant, Mo., who has been van pooling to work at the Boeing Co. for 18 years and has logged more than 1.5 million miles.

Mass Transit — Nancy Bennett of St. Louis, who works at the Washington University Medical School. She has been using MetroLink since 1992.

Telecommuting — Margaret Koenig of St. Charles, who works at Maritz.

Outstanding Employee Transportation Coordinator of the Year — Barbara Klein of MCI WorldCom.

Clean Air Coordinator of the Year — Cathy Boehm and Steve Heidke of Solutia Inc.

Outstanding new Employee Transportation Coordinator of the Year — W.W. Sellers of the Bank of America.

The award for the employer with the largest number of employees pledging to use alternative transportation during RideShare Week went to Susan Dreier of Washington University.

An award for the local employer that has "gone the extra mile" to promote alternative transportation went to Louis Rucker of the Wainwright State Office Building. Only the state authorized $30,000 for the 1999 fiscal year to cover the cost of transit passes for employees. Since starting, 176 employees have received monthly transit pass-

Many prefer takeout Thanksgiving meals

Customers can feast without cooking

By Kelly O'Brien Hugenot
Staff writer

It's possible to have turkey as good as Grandma's without the mess and hassle, thanks to the newest takeout trend — Thanksgiving dinners.

Several deli restaurants and marketts offer traditional and not-so-traditional Thanksgiving meals for people who feel like putting their cooking skills to the ultimate test.

Ed Meyer, Schnucks Markets' director of deli/seafood/carry-out foods, sees a trend toward ordering carry-out dinners for Thanksgiving, as well as for after.

It's nice, he said, to have Thanksgiving dinner.

We see a lot of smaller households and a lot of people who have two or three Thanksgiving dinners to go to," Meyer said. "The weekend after going to grandma's in Indiana, many people don't bring turkey back with them, and they want some."

Schnucks is offering a 10- to 12-pound cooked turkey, 2 pounds of cranberry gelatin mold and 12 brown-and-serve rolls, serving eight to 12 people, for $16.99.

Stop by for a free estimate.

It's offered for Thanksgiving dinner, for people who want to spend time with their family but don't want the preparation.

Wild Oats Market, health food store at 8822 Ladue Road, is serving up traditional Thanksgiving sides, such as four people, with a twist. The main dish is either a free-range turkey or a domestic turkey that has not been confined to a pen — or a vegetarian product.

"This is the first year doing it, and we did selected items like stuffing and mashed potatoes last year," said Stephen Padon, Wild Oats Market kitchen manager.

A complete turkey dinner for two, including stuffing, yams, steamed vegetables and cranberry sauce, is $24.95.

Employees at Provision Gourmet Market, 11615 Olive Blvd., have seen an increase in the number of nontraditional meal packages being ordered, said Ron Adelman, director of operations.

"We're selling a lot of stone crab claws and sides," said Saito.

The market is selling catered meals for four people at $25.99.

Main dishes include stone crab claws or more traditional fare such as honey-mustard baked ham or herb-crusted pork loin. Unique side dishes include sweet potato praline.

It's a way for people to experience the Ritz-Carlton, but in their own home," said Gormley, executive director of the Ritz-Carlton.

A complete turkey dinner for two, including stuffing, yams, steamed vegetables and cranberry sauce, is $24.95.

Employees at Provision Gourmet Market, 11615 Olive Blvd., have seen an increase in the number of nontraditional meal packages being ordered, said Ron Adelman, director of operations.

"We're selling a lot of stone crab claws and sides," said Saito.

The market is selling catered meals for four people at $25.99.

Main dishes include stone crab claws or more traditional fare such as honey-mustard baked ham or herb-crusted pork loin. Unique side dishes include sweet potato praline.

Warriors open season at Alton tourney

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The Granite City boys basketball team opened its season Monday night at the Alton Tournament.

The Warriors were returning to the scene of one of their successes last year during an 11-12-game campaign. Granite City won the title at Alton.

Warriors coach John VanBuskirk had his starters lined up and ready to roll.

"Zack May will start at point guard, Kevin Elliott at the second guard, and Matt Pistorius and Mike Simpson will be the forwards," VanBuskirk said. "Chris Tendall will start at center. Zack May obviously has a lot of experience from last year. He was the point guard as a sophomore. He's a very good ball-handler, he's a good shooter, too, and he's probably the most competitive athlete that we have."

Matt Pistorius is probably our most improved player, very much so, I believe from last year. He's improved his shooting, improved his range. He has varsity experience also, which we like.

Chris Tendall started last year also. We'll have three starters back. Chris is very athletic, has a very good attitude this year. So good things should happen for those three. The two people who don't have a lot of varsity experience played a junior varsity last year. Kevin Elliott is as good an athlete as we have on the team. He's quick, we have him on the team. He's shooting the ball extremely well in the preseason.

Mike Simpson is just a very hard worker, very athletic. He's going to have to be a big rebounder for us and get put-back baskets for us off rebounds, and play real good defense."

Last season, Granite City hit the proverbial wall in the middle of their schedule.

"Last year we were 11-17 overall," VanBuskirk said. "In the middle of the season, we beat Effingham in the Salem Tournament. That made us 11-7, and then we lost our last 10 ball-games of the year."

"We also had our toughest games of our schedule the last 10 ball-games of the year. We played Mount Vernon, Edwardsville twice, Collinsville, Alton, Belleville East. We played all of the best teams, so that hurt us. We got sliding and just couldn't overcome that."

VanBuskirk looks for experience, fitness and hard work to help his players succeed.

"We want to finish better than we did in the conference," he said. "We only won two conference games last year. Our goal is always to be the best we can be in our conference, and our conference is very hard. So that's a big task for us."

"The boys have worked extremely hard this preseason. We have two seniors and three juniors on the team, and three sophomores. We've got a lot of varsity experience from last year, so that helps us a great deal, I hope."

"There are always surprises. Somebody has to come off the bench that you'd never think would be valuable to us. Obviously we don't know who that is yet. We hope that Teddy Wallace, the freshman, can help us."

"Teddy knows the game as well as anybody in our program. He sees the

Senior forward helps Granite City to nice start at Alton Tournament

Debra Aaron is on fire.

The senior forward scored 19 and 29 points on successive nights to help Granite City storm through the Alton Tournament at 4-1 to open the season.

"It feels really good to me," Aaron said. "I feel like I'm the first one I've scored that high. I'm used to getting points, but nothing like that."

"Debra has been absolutely wonderful," senior guard Jim Shanahan said. "She has basically taken over with her pressure up front, that's why it works so well."

"She's so tall and she's shooting the ball really nicely this year. Last year took a toll on her, but now she can hit it from all the way around. It really helps the guards out a lot."

Coaching coach John Moad, who had to endure a 3-20 season last year, has been pleased with Aaron's impact this season.

"She came to us as a sophomore, she didn't play her freshman year, so this is more or less her third year of organized basketball. She had about 10 games under her belt at the time. Moad said. "If you could have seen her during her sophomore season, compared to now, she has made leaps and bounds of improvement."

"She continues to get better. She is one of the better players around. Other teams have to worry about her when she is on the court because she can do so much. She's so athletic, she's tall, she can shoot over their centers. She can take them out almost to the 3-point line, she can make that jump-shot, she plays the point on our press."

"I played a lot this summer, just going out with my friends," Aaron said. "Nothing organized except for a little summer league. But nothing other than that. It really helped a lot."

"I'm taking it a lot more. I didn't really expect to win before, but now that we are winning, it has given me a more positive attitude and a better outcome."

"I have to watch my attitude. I get down really easily. I just need to learn to control my temper and have a more positive attitude all of the time."

Aaron's presence at the middle of the Warriors' pressing wedge allows the guards to get off the opposing team's ball-handler and cause turnovers.

"I don't know where we would be right now without her," Moad said. "She is the key to our press. We don't have a lot of height, so she is the key to our inside game. She gives us that legitimate big girl inside."

Aaron's presence in the locker room and on the floor has had a profound influence on the changing fortunes in the gym.

"She is kind of a quiet girl," Moad said. "But she is a fiery competitor. When she's quiet, she's quiet. When she's on the court, she turns it up a notch. She leads by playing hard, and the other girls see that. She doesn't like to lose and I like to

Perfect start

Jared Brown controls the puck for the Illinois Warriors of the Mississippi Valley Club Hockey Association during their season-opening victory against Alton Marquette. The Warriors, who won the MVCHA championship last year in their first season of existence, are off to a 2-0 start this season with a 5-4 triumph against Marquette and a 4-3 victory against Edwardsville. Both victories were against MVCHA semifinalists from 1987-98. The Warriors were set to play Collinsville on Tuesday night and next plays Cahokia 5:15 p.m. Saturday at the Cahokia Ice Rink.

All-state soccer picks honored in Elmhurst; Downtown Imprints loads up on local talent

Despite the drive of nearly five hours, the Metro East was well represented at the Illinois High School Soccer Coaches Association 27th annual awards banquet last Thursday in Elmhurst, Ill.

An announced crowd of 500 people made the trek to the Chicago western suburb to honor the state's best high school soccer players. The 1988 season coaches and friends of the game were also honored, but the focus was on the players. A total of 465 players were invited to the banquet that broke down into 60 all-state selections, 10 all-section players and 204 honorable mention all-section players.

Four of the area's five all-state players were in attendance to represent Region 12. They were Todd Bruns of Triad, Raymond James of O'Fallon, Matt Spector of Carbondale and Adam Emig of Althoff. Granite City's all-section Dave Margrabe didn't make the trip.

For Bruns and Emig, the pair has been in a reunion of sorts. The pair has been playing soccer together since they were pre-teens in the Collinsville Soccer Association. They continued to play together as members of the highly successful Downtown Imprints select team and will be part of that team again this spring and summer. The only time they have not been teammates was at the high school level, with Emig, a Collinsville resident, playing for Althoff and Bruns at Triad. Coincidentally, Bruns left the area in search of college football with 82 points and Emig was second with 82.

Also in attendance was Kyle Rainwater, a 1987 all-state pick from Triad and an all-sectional pick this year. Rainwater also plays with Bruns and Emig on the select team. He teamed with Bruns and Emig as co-captains of the Downtown under-10 team in 1990 that won the State Cup championship. Downtown has been a power on the State Cup level for a number of years. The team has twice finished in the top 10 in the under-17 age group and once advanced to the semifinal round before being eliminated.

Bob Emig

Downtown coach/manager John Gess is determined to bring back the championship to Downtown this season. He has picked up four quality players — goalie Justin Roehr, midfielder Corey Winfield and forward Matt Spector from Collinsville, and defender Spector from Carbondale. In case you're not counting, that means Downtown will have four of this year's area all-stars on its roster, including fifth all-star, James of O'Fallon, also could be part of the team.

When battling the powerhouses of the Chicago area, Downtown needs to have that type of talent to be competitive. Chicago's top clubs, like the Magic and Strikers, even combine the best of the best, as they did last season, to field a team. The Magic, against the Chicago Magic/Strikers in the championship of the under-17 division. The Magic/Strikers dominated the game, but didn't score until the final minute of the game. That team represented Illinois well, winning the regional championship in a competition that takes in 13 other states from the Midwest.

Goalkeeper Doug Warren of Palatine, Friend was named the state's top player. He also was named to the All-America team by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America. Other Illinois players named to the team were Tim Regan, a mid-fielder for Highland Park Sauberg, and Kevin Wicker, a forward from Naperville North.

Margrabe was one of the 12 players named to the all-Midwest team. Another player on the all-Midwest team familiar to Metro East soccer fans is Peter Christofilakos, the high-scoring forward from 1988 IHSA Class A champion Springfield Sacred Heart-Griffin.

Besides Rainwater, other area players named to the all-Sectional team were Tim Blasch of Wood River, Bryan French of Marion, Matt Spector of Triad and T.J. Goeker of Highland, Phil Piuco of Althoff, Brandon Gaynor and Luke Kreimalnayor of Edwardsville, Joel Leiker and Jason McGinley of Althoff, and Matt Spector of Carbondale. The pair from Collinsville, Jim Heinen of Belleville East, Ryan Jacob of Belleville West, Matt Kaestner of Gibault, Shanty McIntyre of Carbondale, Justin Profanic of Centralia, and Mike Smith and Corey Winfield of Granite City.

Southeastern Illinois' coach of the year was Tom Frazer, who guided Carbondale to its second straight appearance in the IHSA Class A state finals. Mascoutah was honored as the area's Myro Rys Sportsmanship Cup winner.

Warriors win four at Alton tourney

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

The Granite City Warriors completed the Alton Tournament with a 4-1 record, losing only to eventual champion Alton Marquette in the quarterfinals of the round-robin tournament.

The Warriors closed the event by trouncing Waterloo 73-40 last Friday and Cahokia 83-45 on Saturday. Those two wins, with earlier victories over Civic Memorial and Alton, brought Granite City's record to 11-17, one more than it had all of last season.

"Against Waterloo, we just kept hitting in the first half," Granite City coach John Moad said. "We got in their face and rode a pretty good lead and maintained it. The game was over early. It was 39-17 at half-time. [John] Wallace had 12."

"They couldn't handle our pressure very well. I think we're going to cause a lot of teams trouble with our pressure and we're going to do that to be successful. We've got to get in their face and play that press."

"When we play a zone defense and we're pressuring, it really picks up our wins. And with the other two reasons, as a coaching staff, we're going to try to press everybody. That's our game. We have to get up-tempo. We have to get these girls playing a little more aggressive. We've got to get in their face and play that press."

"Against Cahokia, we did a lot of things well. It was 43-18 at the half."

"We need more girls with an attitude like that, who don't like to lose. I think the last couple of years we fell into a trap where we kind of got used to losing, and Debra is trying to get us out of that. She doesn't like that kind of thinking and she's making it well known."

"I consider myself one of the leaders," Aaron said. "Jan Shanafelt is the big leader, but my senior year I feel like I'm one of the leaders on the team and get everything going."

"I lead on the floor in a way, but there are a lot of leaders on the court. It's more like getting everybody going before the game, getting ready."

The Warriors' quick start has been a spark for the program. But the spark will only catch into a fire if the wins keep coming.

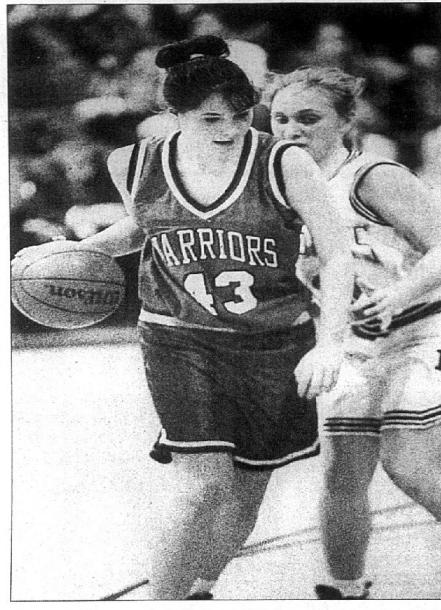

"If we are going to continue to win, Debra has got to continue to play a huge role," Moad said. "When she is hitting, that opens up Jessica Wallace and Jan (Shanafelt) and Erika (Todd). When she's not hitting, then they can guard those other girls a little bit tighter."

"When our press is working, she is right in the middle of it. She isn't the one to key it to, but she is the one to make passes, just with her pressure on the ball, with her long arms and height. And she is very active."

"We've all got to keep moving and not get down, because when one of us gets down, it brings the rest of the team down. We have to keep it up to keep the teamwork up and get everyone involved, not just have one person shooting."

"We need to play as a team. Whenever the whole team is working together and moving around on the press, it makes the game a lot faster. Everyone knows what everyone else is doing, and it makes the game that much easier that way."

"It just feels great winning."

Granite City senior forward Debra Aaron scored 19 points against Waterloo and 29 against Cahokia last weekend at the Alton Tournament. Her performance helped the Warriors open the season with a 4-1 mark in the tournament and a second-place finish behind Alton Marquette.

This year we are all getting along, we are all good friends, and that makes everything a lot easier. We all pass to each other, there is no selfishness, everybody wants everybody else to do well. It's a lot better this year."

"We lost to all of those teams last year, we didn't beat any one of them. It felt really great beating them..."

Jan Shanafelt
Granite City senior

so we had it going. We are scoring points and our press is creating a lot of easy chances for us."

Debra Aaron gave another huge performance, scoring 29 points and grabbing 19 rebounds.

"Debra is just eating that up. She is getting a lot of easy buckets, which off of the press," Moad said. "And it's not like she isn't working hard. She is working extremely hard on our press. She is getting the ball, at the same time she is getting the steal and the bucket. She has just been outstanding for us."

"Debra had 29, Jessie Wallace had 18, Jan Shanafelt and Erika Todd haven't been scoring big for us during the last two games, but they are doing a lot of other things well, like getting assists, they are getting steals, and they are contributing in other ways. And that's what we need. If they are not scoring one night, then the other night, and they pick each other up. They are getting the ball to Debra and Jessie when they need to."

The overall performance in the tournament was a jolt for the program.

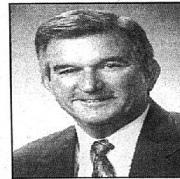

"I think it's going to help us most of all confidence-wise," Moad said. "We went up there and those teams we probably should have beat, and we played real well offensively. We gained a lot of confidence."

"We couldn't have asked for a better start to the year."

"I and we played Alton Marquette pretty tough for three quarters before we ran out of gas. But that's going to happen, there you are. We are building to get there. Every win is important to us and we got four big ones in the Alton Tournament."

"It's already one more victory than they had last year during a 3-20 season which is far from the collective memory of this team."

"We don't like to talk about that," Moad said. "We want to get to where we can get to .500 and get there every season. Until we get to that point, we have to build and build. Hopefully we can get some more wins early. Wood River is a big game for us; we need a win there. We can go to 5-2 going into that Thanksgiving break, that would be outstanding for us. Any wins,

Warriors fall to Mascoutah

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

Granite City fell behind in the third quarter and could never catch up Monday night during a 55-45 loss to Mascoutah.

Granite City's press did its job in the first half and kept the game close. The Warriors tried to rally at halftime.

But the Warriors scored only one basket in the third quarter. Mascoutah didn't fare much better, though, scoring just six points.

"We had some tough luck shooting in the third quarter," Granite City coach John Moad said. "We only had two points, and that hurt us."

"We came out in the fourth quarter and we were playing hard. We got back in the game but we just couldn't hit that shot over the hump. We got it down within six and we were right there. They hit their free throws and we kind of ran out of gas at the end but that was because we turned up the pressure in the second half. The effort was there."

The Indians took their time and worked the ball around in the final period to get easy shots under the basket and seal the victory.

The Warriors, on the other hand, looked fatigued. They had just finished playing five games in six days last week at the Alton Tip Off Classic.

"If you look at the Alton Tournament, you could see a real difference in intensity tonight," Moad said. "We came out and for some reason we were little bit tired and fatigued. We've had a bunch of games in a row, but that can't be an excuse."

Jessica Wallace scored a season-high 19 points for the Warriors and gave Granite City the chance to come back. She hit her first shot out on fire tonight," Moad said. "We were waiting for that kind of game from her. She kept us in the game by herself tonight with her shooting. Debra Aaron played hard, Jan Shanafelt played hard.

"We just didn't shoot real well tonight and that hurt us. That's going to happen, we're going to shoot real well all the time."

Granite City found itself choking on a plague of fouls early in the first half, and then late as the press worked to get the Warriors back in the game. The Indians went to the foul stripe, hitting 10 of 12 free throws in the fourth quarter alone.

"I think all year we've been fouling too much, starting in our first game," Shanafelt said. "They were in the bonus in the first half and that definitely has got to stop."

"Especially down low. We don't foul when we need fouls, we foul on fast breaks and things like that. When they don't need to happen."

"The fouls hurt us a little bit, but I think they started playing better defense once they got those four fouls in the second half," Moad said.

"We are going to get fouls playing defenseless. We just have to play smarter. We didn't play very smart for most of this game. When we started playing smart and putting our bodies in it, we were right in it at the end and gave ourselves a chance to win. We came in here with confidence tonight, but just didn't shoot very well."

Shanafelt had eight points and Della Moore had four off of the bench. Ashley Bogovich and Janelle Hankes each had two points.

Aaron had 10 points for the Warriors, scoring in double figures for the fourth consecutive game.

The Warriors were on the road to Wood River on Tuesday to take on the Oilers. Their next game is Tuesday, with a home game at Belleville East with the junior varsity beginning at 6:15 p.m.

Titus, Montez lead SIUE squad

Special to the Journal

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville coach Larry Kristoff has quietly put together a strong returning roster of veterans and a crop of 13 newcomers to open the season with high hopes.

SIUE enters the year with a projected team of 20 in the NCAA Division II Wrestling Coaches Association poll after finishing last year at No. 18.

In his 20-year career, Kristoff has coached 64 wrestlers to All-American status. Expect that number to rise record of 8-7.

"Titus is a true athlete able to do many things," Kristoff said. "He has a good shot to win a national championship. I'm looking for Montez to have another strong year."

José Hernandez of Cicero is a redshirt freshman after sitting out a year ago.

COLLEGE WRESTLING

enters the season ranked No. 1 by the NCAA Division II wrestling coaches poll at 165 pounds.

Montez is expected to make a run at a national championship in the 133-pound class. Montez currently is seeded No. 5 in the nation by the coaches poll. The senior was injured during the national championships year ago and still managed to finish sixth at the meet and post a season record of 8-7.

"Titus is a true athlete able to do many things," Kristoff said. "He has a good shot to win a national championship. I'm looking for Montez to have another strong year."

José Hernandez of Cicero is a redshirt freshman after sitting out a year ago.

Hernandez is a talented freshman and will start the season for us at 125, Kristoff said.

Kristoff has plenty of youth and depth at 13 with three grapplers back. Matt Titus, Birmingham Dwayne Beers returns to the team after redshirting a season ago. Steve Bryant, a freshman from Elkhorn, is a potential talent who currently is rehabilitating an injury. Ricardo Gonzalez, of El Paso, Texas, enters his first season as a SIUE freshman and a state champion as a senior in high school.

At 141, SIUE returns one athlete from last season and introduces two new players. Dale Powell, a sophomore, is back after a season of six victories. Nathan Graumenz, a freshman, will wrestle after suffering a serious shoulder injury before the start of last season. Graumenz was an Illinois high school state champion his senior year. Vandilla, an second-year, newcomer, Jesse Bautista of El Paso, Texas, another Texas high school state champion.

Elijah Roberts begins the season as the only grappler in the 149 class. The senior from Rock Island won 14-2 before missing the second half of last season.

"It's important to not only qualify for nationals but also to be an All-American," Kristoff said.

William Glass, a native of Locust Grove, Okla., holds the top position in the 157-pound class. The senior claimed a 16-5 record last year. Competing with Glass are two freshmen: Josh Mullens of Hanna City, Zach Stephens of St. Charles, Ill. Mullens is a walk-on who continues to improve each practice. Stephens was a Missouri state champion a year ago in high school.

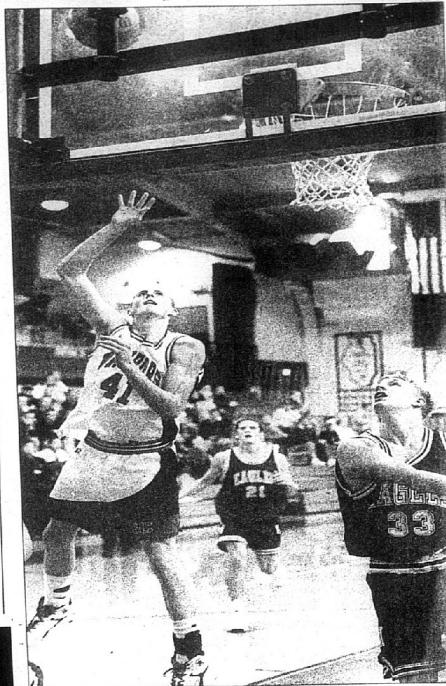

The lone Cougar in the 174-pound class will be freshman Barry Wickware. The native of Terre Haute, Ind., will need to step right in and contribute.

Steve Brown of Birmingham, Ala., returns after notching an 11-11 record as a heavyweight last year. Brown, a junior, battled through a season-long nagging injury to stay his position in the lineup. Aaron Wiens, a freshman from Cicero, is the other heavyweight.

Despite posting a 1-15 team record a year ago, Kristoff emphasizes one meet, the NCAA Division II Championships, and uses the regular season to get his wrestlers ready for it.

"Everything we do during the season is geared toward the national championship meet," Kristoff said.

SIUE opened their season Friday and Saturday at the St. Louis Open.

Center Chris Tendall goes for the layup. Tendall will start this year for the Warriors.

floor extremely well. "Probably what will hold him back a little right now is that he's going to be a gamer. I think whatever it takes to be a winner in the game, he is going to be able to do it.

He's an extremely good passer. In practice, playing against the varsity, he makes wide-open jump shots. He's a good shooter."

"We don't want to rush him. We want him to be relaxed and learn what we are trying to do, to be a team, and not to be obsessed into trying to make the varsity his first year. Let him work in and be a sub."

"And at the same time, the person he has to beat out is Zack May, and Zack has a year of varsity experience under his belt already. So that it's always a little bit frightening. We have to go and play Springfield, Lincoln, Alton, and Granite City. Those teams are all probably going to be very quick. We don't get to practice against quickness, so we don't know what we're going to do."

"That's a little scary at the beginning of the year, but we'll know what we have to try to correct once the conference games begin."

SPORTSPolice, fire fighters set for showdownBy Daniel J. Ladd Correspondent

For the 11th straight year, police officers and fire fighters from throughout the St. Louis area will do battle with a foe of a different sort.

BOXING — The 11th annual Metro Budweiser Boxing Showdown is set for 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Kiel Center in downtown St. Louis.

The showdown — known as the Guns and Hoses battle — is a yearly boxing match pits a team of fire fighters against their counterparts from the police force.

The showdown has become one of Thanksgiving holiday tradition as thousands pack into Kiel to cheer on the men — and women — who risk their lives to keep us safe.

The event was originated by boxing fan, civic mover and shall we say, political shyster Clinton of Grey Eagle Distributors. The Showdown raises money for the Backstoppers, a 1,000-member organization that assists the families of firefighters and police officers who lost their lives in the line of duty. The organization provides financial assistance, tuition assistance, other vital help to families of the fallen.

"I can't think of a better project to be involved in than 'Guns and Hoses.' They (officers and fire fighters) really do risk their lives on a daily basis for the community...."

Jerry Clinton
Boxing show organizer

"I can't think of a better project to be involved in than 'Guns and Hoses.' They (officers and fire fighters) really do risk their lives on a daily basis for the community...."

Jerry Clinton
Boxing show organizer

Showdown participants are drawn from both the St. Louis area and Illinois. There are two women's bouts. Fighters are matched by age, weight, and previous boxing experience. The event is run under the auspices of the St. Louis Amateur Boxing Association which oversees the fighters and make sure no one gets hurt.

"It's a good, clean exhibition of sport," Clinton said. "These guys are not million-dollar fighters; they are regular cops and fire fighters and they give it their all."

For the first time this year, the Showdown will be offering Las Vegas style seating with tables of 10 scattered around ringside. Those tables, which can hold a group up to $1,000 per table, already are mostly sold out.

However, plenty of good seats remain. Tickets range from $10 to $30 and can be purchased by calling (314) 353-3632 or (314) 277-8559. Tickets also are available at the door.

Edwardsburg teacher, coach Winston Brown dies

Winston Brown, who touched hundreds of lives as a teacher and coach at Edwardsburg High School and also served on the City Council, died Friday. He was 65.

Brown, who received a heart transplant last year, died of complications that developed after the procedure, his son, Wendell Brown, said.

Winston Brown was taken to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis about 11 a.m. Thursday and died about 1 p.m. Friday, his son said. Brown's wife, Jenece, was at his bedside.

Brown's death brought a flood of remem- brances from friends and admirers.

"Winston Brown has been an exemplary role model to me and many others," said Eddie Major, a former Nishus said. "He has touched the lives of thousands of people, and his touch has led to a better community. His many contributions will forever be remembered. This is a great loss for our community and our state."

Nishus ordered the flags at all city offices to be flown at half-staff. He said he also expected the city to honor Brown at his funeral.

"We will be working closely with Jenece and a good person," he said.

A native of New Orleans, Brown came to Edwardsburg in 1960, when he became the first black to teach in the city's newly integrated school system.

Joyce Robinson, 59, of Alton was a close friend of Brown's future wife. She and her late husband, Preston Robinson, served as best man and maid of honor for the Browns' wed- ding, and Joyce and Preston served the same roles in the Robinsons' wedding.

"When he came to Edwardsburg, he had strong convictions about people being ethical and fair to each other," Robinson said about Brown's role as a black pioneer in local education. "He definitely helped to break down some barriers."

"He was such a catalyst. While everybody else was out being demonstrative, Winston was quiet. You ask him what he felt, and in his way he'd begin to say what he felt, and it turned out it was the same way you felt."

Robinson saw Brown's commitment to civil rights through their work together with the Urban League of Madison County.

"He accepted the risk and the possibility that whatever the percentages were that it would not be successful," she said.

He noted that because his father survived for more than a year after the operation, the transplant was considered successful.

In September of that year, Brown resigned from the City Council, citing health reasons. At this week's council meeting, Susan Donnelly was sworn in to serve the remainder of his unexpired term.

Brown's health deteriorated during the past three years, his son said.

Wendell Brown said he would never forget his father's patience.

"I remember him as the teacher he was to me as a father, the time he used to take to show me how to do things right," he said.

After the storm

Salvation Army feeds, treats Hurricane Georges victims

When Hurricane Georges slammed the Dominican Republic and other Caribbean nations in September, the huge storm left thousands without shelter, food and water.

Capt. Martin Colip of the Salvation Army of Southwestern Madison County was one of 10 regional Salvation Army personnel sent to the Dominican Republic from late October to early November to help the nation recover.

"It was like taking a country that had nothing, then taking that away," Colip said.

The extent of damage heaped on the poor nation was overwhelming, he said, almost as if it had been through a war. The tiny homes — little more than board slapped together — just blew apart.

"I vacation in the Gulf of Mexico. But those are million dollar vacation homes. They're insured," he said. "In contrast, in Santo Domingo, the population lives what you and I would consider a one-room garage or shack."

"It was like an atom bomb went off," he said. "Nothing withstands it."

Colip joined his fellow Salvation Army workers, including another 19 from our west, in setting up shelters so refugees could get something to eat.

Elsewhere, he and two others noticed that refugees' medical needs weren't being met. Pink eye, rashes, open sores and cuts needed immediate treatment. When the three compared their training, they discovered one was a state-licensed first-responder, one was a paramedic and one was trained in first aid. Together, they attacked the medical problems.

"We washed, bodies and cleaned sores," Colip said. "Now I know what Jesus means when he talks with the feet of the disciples. It's a humbling experience."

When the trio was finished, the pink eye was almost eradicated. "There were thousands of thousands of people (affected by the hurricane)," he said. "We didn't even put a dent in what needed to be done."

In the wake of the more powerful and deadly Hurricane Mitch, which killed thousands in Central America in October — Colip said he was afraid people would forget about the refugees in the Caribbean.

"(People) may forget when the media turns attention to the next big story," he said.

To help out Hurricane Georges victims, send a check or money order to the Salvation Army, 3007 E. 23rd St., Granite City, 62040.

The pictures here were taken by Capt. Martin Colip and others during their Salvation Army trip to the Dominican Republic. At top, Colip snapped this picture from the window of his car as they drove from the airport. Normally these avenues are lined with palm trees, but Hurricane Georges shredded the trees. Above, Colip cleans the face of a young refugee. Many people were injured from the 100-mile-per-hour winds, but one of the worst medical conditions was an outbreak of pink eye. At left, a young girl bites down on a loaf of bread Salvation Army provided at one refugee center. The hurricane had destroyed most of the Dominican Republic's crops and left thousands homeless. The volunteers fed approximately 700 people a day in two centers.

'I Still Know' death knell to recent golden age of slasher films

After 'Urban Legends' disaster, latest movie bomb may drive final nail into coffin of genre; survival very much in doubt

Slasher movies seemed to be entering a new golden age. "Scream" was crisp and witty, self-referential and territorial. "Scream 2" was even better. "I Know What You Did Last Summer" was a textured tale of lost innocence and the consequences of lying, misdealing and a slice-and-dice film.

MOVIE REVIEW Then things started to fall with the awful "Urban Legend."

Now, quality's death knell sounds like "I Still Know What You Did Last Summer," less a sequel than a pasty-pale imitation of the original with the action moved to a tropical island.

Where "I Know" was filled with echoes of post-adolescent broken dreams and recriminations, "I Still Know" is painless, bloodless, disembowlements, dismemberments and eviscerations, bound by the thinness of plot, and the dullest form of wondering whether the two young stars will survive to juggle another day.

Jessica James (Jennifer Love Hewitt), who at the end of the first movie seemed to be poised to die at the hands of murderous fisherman Ben Willis (Muse Watson) is instead back at college a year later, studying at summer school and still haunted by the memory of the previous two July fourths.

On her first day and three friends, stranded in a mountain road over a beach, accidentally hit a fisherman. They thought they had killed him. But as they dumped him into the sea to hide the dead, he awoke.

Exactly a year later, the fisherman, Willis, came back and dressed like the Gorton's fisherman, started killing people in the small fishing town of Smithport.

"We're not ALWAYS small towns? Don't the hapless urban teens of, say, New York or Chicago deserve their share of getting picked off?"

He almost got Julie and her sometime boyfriend, Ray Bronson (Freddie Prinze Jr., easily reminiscent of a Nostalgia Bates-era Tony Perkins), but they managed to do him in.

Or did they?

"...still know" finds Julie heading — thanks to a radio contest to a remote island of the Bahamas with her new best friend, Karla Wilson (Brandy). Karla, accompanied by Tim (Mike Pnifer) and Julie's wannabe boyfriend Will Benson (Matthew Settle). The vacation is for ... THE JULY FOURTH WEEKEND. Hello!

Jennifer Love Hewitt and Brandy in a scene from the Columbia Pictures film, "I Still Know What You Did Last Summer."

Brief wrap-up: They get there, odd characters abound, a storm comes, the island gets cut off, there's blood, blood spills, the dark figure in the rain slicker reappears, heroines crawl around in increasingly revealing poses. Is it Ben Willis, back from the grave?

Or somebody else — a mimic of the original killer? Hmm. That would be innovative.

With obligatory killer's-eye-view shots and quasi-Hitchcock oblique angles, "I Still Know" is a technically sound if unoriginal movie. There's nothing really wrong with it except that it isn't very good.

It is, however, somewhat muddled if you haven't seen the first film.

Hewitt's horror-movie starlet vivacity is vulnerable, tough and resourceful when threatened. She's not bad, given her material, though at times it's uncomfortable dialogue.

Same story for Brandy and Settle. Only Pnifer's wisecracks crackle, and it's mostly the "I Still Know" 2nd and the pre-"Scream" "I Know What." And pray that someone else doesn't find out what they did last summer; it might mean another movie.

It's hard to evolve creatively when your blood is spilling all over you.

The shrouded killer is simply the latest in a line that includes Michael Myers of "Halloween," Jason Voorhees of "Friday the 13th" and Freddy Krueger of "Nightmare on Elm Street."

What these guys need is a more "psy" group, one could benefit from exploring Freddy's inner psycho.

When "I Still Know" winds down, we're left with questions: How does the fisherman guy see to kill when his face is covered by a slicker hat?

Why does Julie, terrified that a murderer is on the deserted island, don binders and headphones and get into a tanning bed?

And the perennial: Why do people keep leaving each other alone?

Finally, movie ends. Sun comes out. Some people are dead, some aren't. You say "Scream 3" and "Scream 2" and the pre-"Scream" "I Know What." And pray that someone else doesn't find out what they did last summer; it might mean another movie.

"I Still Know What You Did Last Summer," a Columbia Pictures/Mandalay Entertainment release. We now accept MasterCard & Visa.

Biography of Queen Elizabeth too 'artsy' for own good

From 1990s viewpoint, monarch's life story is journey toward confidence with elements of 'Halloween'

The Virgin Queen is back, but you may not recognize her, because the new film "Elizabeth" cuts a revisionist historical swath through well-worn patch of Britain's past.

Part modern woman ahead of her time, part a sleepy-eyed and not always willing sovereign, Cate Blanchett's Elizabeth I isn't quite like any queen yet to be put on screen.

MOVIE REVIEW happens, she's the first of two Elizabeth Tudors. Engagers will encounter this season, with the ginger-haired Blanchett's spindly, parched ruler existing at a mighty remove from the matronly, aged monarch played by Judi Dench ("Shakespeare in Love").

It could be argued that it's both the strength and liability of the film that made "Elizabeth" wear its desire-to-be-different on its sleeve.

The movie is never without interest as it traces one cunning and violent intrigues after another, complete with malice and sweat. But it's also too self-conscious in its desire to leave most English costume drama, well, in the close.

The problem is a showy, highly resistible artiness that may put off as many moviegoers as it attracts.

One of the few scenes that bleed to white, the next Kapur indulges in a horror movie technique or two that suggest a censored equivalent of "Halloween."

"Elizabeth" is smart and savvy and more than a shade too knowing. If it weren't so determined to be cool, it might even generate some heat.

The movie seems intended as a career-making role for Blanchett.

As Michael Hirst's script sees it, Elizabeth's story is a journey toward confidence — from the so-called "bastard queen" spat upon near the start to the celebrated Virgin Queen who gives up her lover, Josephine, to marry Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, and even her hair on the way to projecting a new self as the Gloriana of legend.

Way of Lights is shining

New this year:
Bethlehem
display

It's Thanksgiving time so it must be time for the annual Way of Lights display at the National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows.

New this year is a multi-colored Town of Bethlehem and a 26-foot Year of Love electro-art sculpture. The displays contain some of the more than one million lights shining at the Way of Lights.

The Way of Lights is open every night from 5 to 10 p.m. Tickets are available for horse-drawn carriages and open-air guided tram tours, weather permitting. Call for reservations.

Children visiting the Shrine during the Way of Lights are especially fond of the Children's Theatre and the live miniature animal display. The indoor display is open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. but is closed Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

Admission is free. For more information, contact the National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows, 397-6700 (TTY) or St. Louis, (314) 241-3400 (TTY).

Train show steams into Gateway Center

More than 10,000 model trains will be on display and for sale this weekend

The Great American Train Show stops at the Gateway Center in Collinsville this weekend. More than 10,000 trains will be on display and for sale.

The show runs from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Tickets are $5 for adults and free for children under 12 accompanied by an adult.

The show features operating model railroads of various sizes, train dealers and train collectors from across the country. There will also be railroad collectibles and workshops on different model railroad topics.

There will be special train set up just for kids to run. The "hands-on" layout allows children to control any of the four trains and dozens of accessories.

The show is intended for everyone, organizers say. For the serious model railroader, the show has hundreds of train dealers and collectors that make the show a must see. The casual visitors and non-enthusiasts will find the operating model railroads fascinating.

One of the most popular features at the show will be the "Air Train." This train is so small that the entire 10-car train can fit in your hand.

For those interested in becoming a model railroader, plenty of experts will be on hand. More than a million people have a casual interest in model railroading, organizers say, and more than 250,000 people are serious.

spending, on average, more than $500 each annually.

There are 25 different sizes of model trains, with HO scale being the most popular. HO scale is 1:87 scale with the average boxcar about six inches long. N scale is the second most popular and is about half the size of HO Lionel (O Gauge) is the third most popular.

A starter train set can be purchased for approximately $50. A nice layout can be built for $200. However, many enthusiasts spend thousands of dollars each year.

For more information on the Great American Train Show, call GATS Limited, (630) 834-0652.

The Great American Train Show will bring this and other model railroad set-ups to the Gateway Center.

Bandleader heads back to St. Louis

John McDaniel will lead Symphony Orchestra through Broadway review

By Kelly O'Brien Hugenot
Staff writer

The music that beckoned John McDaniel away from St. Louis is bringing him back home.

McDaniel, a former Kirkwood resident and current bandleader on New York-based "The Rosie O'Donnell Show," will lead the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra through a Broadway review 8 p.m. Friday at Powell Symphony Hall, 718 N. Grand Blvd.

"It's a very upbeat program of Broadway music. It's always great to have someone come back to his hometown after making it in the 'Big Apple,'" said Saska Byron, publicity director for the symphony.

McDaniel agrees.

"It's a real honor to come back and perform the music I love," he said.

McDaniel knew that great things awaited him from the very first time he saw a Broadway musical.

"The music of Broadway called me very loudly," he said. "And now I get to bring Broadway into America. I feel very lucky."

McDaniel made his own luck. His parents, James and Jane McDaniel of Kirkwood, were supportive from the very beginning.

He began his musical career in the vocal choir at Kirkwood High School under the direction of John Warren Owen, who McDaniel still regards as his favorite teacher. After graduating in 1979, he attended Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh for four years.

Upon graduating from college with a bachelor's degree in drama, McDaniel felt like he just wasn't quite ready for the New York Broadway scene yet. Instead he headed to Los Angeles where he landed jobs working in local theater productions. One gig led to another and soon he was the resident conductor for the Long Beach Civic Light Opera. He started rubbing elbows with and working for celebrities, including Carol Burnett, Cab Calloway and Nell Carter.

"I got to work with a lot of great stars and had a blast," he said.

McDaniel also met the woman who has helped make him a household name — Rosie O'Donnell — for the first time during those years at parties around the Los Angeles area.

After 10 years on the West Coast, he decided to head for the New York. McDaniel continued to work in the theater, where he once again met O'Donnell.

She was starring in the musical "Grease" and he was the conductor. The two solidified their friendship, so when McDaniel heard that she was planning a talk show, he was excited for her.

"I thought it would be fun to be at home and watch her show," he said.

McDaniel was recently nominated for a Daytime Emmy in musical direction and composition.

Tickets, which range from $14 to $49, are available through the Powell Hall box office at 534-1700, and Metrotix at 534-1111.

'A Bug's Life' is true to Disney tradition

Film is a clever, sweet computer-animated comedy

By Ronnie Roy
Staff writer

Walt Disney Pictures' entry in the computer-animated, insect comedy sweepstakes, "A Bug's Life," is a clever, sweet comedy true to the company's tradition.

It's not as good as Disney's first collaboration with Pixar Animation Studios, 1995's "Toy Story," but it's arguably the most fun 90 minutes you'll ever spend with ants, grasshoppers, spiders and other creepy crawlies.

The plot is based in part on the classic Aesop's fable about industrious ants and a grasshopper who'd rather play than work. As the film opens, the ants of Ant Island are busy collecting tribute for a gang of tough grasshoppers, lead by the vicious Hopper (voice of Kevin Spacey).

Things go terribly wrong when Flik (Dave Foley), a clever but troublemaking inventor, accidentally knocks the grasshoppers' tribute over and into the water.

Hopper and his gang arrive, quite upset when their dinner isn't there for them. Hopper warns the ants that they will return at the end of the harvest season, expecting double the tribute to be ready for them.

This leaves the Queen (Phyllis Diller) and Princess Atta (Julia Louis-Dreyfus) in a dilemma. There's no way they can gather enough grain to satisfy the grasshoppers and still have enough left over to see them through the winter.

Flik suggests the colony send someone out to hire warrior bugs that will stand up to the grasshoppers. Princess Atta feels this is a foolish idea, but the royal family agree that if it will get Flik out of the way while they work, it's worth it.

Meanwhile, P.T. Flea (John Ratzenberger) is having a rough time with his circus. Audiences just aren't impressed by hypnotist Manny (Jonathan Harris) and assistant Gypsy (Madeline Flik the ant, left, recruits a band of circus performers, thinking they are warriors, in a scene from the Walt Disney Pictures and Pixar Animation Studios release, "A Bug's Life."

Kahn), Rosie the spider (Bonnie Hunt), rhino beetle Dim (Brad Garrett), pillbugs Tuck and Roll (Michael McShane), ladybug-with-attitude Francis (Denis Leary), walking stick Slim (David Hyde Pierce) and caterpillar Heimlich (Joe Ranft). P.T. fires them all after a particularly bad show. When the circus gang gets in a brawl at a bar, Flik arrives and mistakenly believes they are warriors. He offers them a job, and they mistakenly believe he wants them to do a dinner theater show.

Flik returns home with his new friends, where he is declared a hero. That is, until the truth comes out. Now, the ants have to come up with a way to outwit the grasshoppers or it will be a long, hungry winter.

"A Bug's Life" naturally draws comparisons to "Antz," the DreamWorks Pictures film released last month. "Antz" has a more adult sense of humor (as you would expect from a film starring Woody Allen) while "A Bug's Life" is more geared toward children (as you would expect from Disney).

While both films deliver impressive computer animation, the Disney film is brighter and more colorful. "Antz" is less visually appealing, with its brown ants working underground in the brown earth.

Like "Toy Story," "A Bug's Life" features music by Randy Newman. Stick around for the closing credits. After a few verses of Newman's "The Time of Your Life," the credits feature several humorous "outtakes" by the bug actors.

It's time to say thanks

Thanksgiving is part of many films

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

Each Thanksgiving Day, it is appropriate to take time to consider all for which we are grateful.

Let's get started by mentioning family and friends. Almost everyone would say the same. However, I doubt that the rest of my list will share much in common with one compiled by Catherine Galasso.

I am thankful for Elle MacPherson. Even though I know I will never be allowed to get anywhere near her, I appreciate that she is on the Earth at the same time I am.

I want to express my gratitude for Mark McGwire coming to St. Louis and hitting 70 home runs last season. Shoot, I'll be satisfied if he

I am happy that the ointment seems to be working

I am thankful for the Three Stooges. These entertainers have improved my life in ways that Ingmar Bergman never could.

I am glad that this is a free country and I am not forced to watch auto racing, soap operas or Jerry Springer.

I appreciate that movie theaters have gone to stadium seating, which somewhat reduces the noise of the idiotic chatter from other patrons you are forced to endure while trying to take in a film.

I am delighted that there are so many varieties of beer available on the market.

I want to personally thank the Victoria's Secret company for its catalogs and TV commercials. Finally, I am grateful that

5. Which president moved Thanksgiving to the third Thursday in November at the request of merchants, then returned it to the fourth Thursday in the month two years later?

6. While many different NFL teams have played games on Turkey Day, which ones customarily compete against different teams on that date every year?

7. Thanksgiving is celebrated in Canada during which month?

8. "As God is my witness, I thought turkeys could fly," is a line from a Thanksgiving episode of which TV situation comedy?

9. Who was the 19th century magazine editor credited with leading the campaign for the establishment of a national Thanksgiving celebration?

10. Fall harvest festivals have been traced back all the way to the ancient Greeks, who held their celebrations to honor which goddess?

ANSWERS: 1. Abraham Lincoln, in 1863. Prior to that it was observed on a random basis in the different states. 2. "Planes, Trains and Automobiles," a great flick also starring John Candy. 3. The Wampanoag tribe, who were invited to the festivities by Chief Massasoit. 4. "Miracle on 34th Street." 5. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who made the move in 1939, then shifted the holiday back to its original slot in 1941. 6. The Detroit Lions and Dallas Cowboys. 7. October, on the second Monday of the month. 8. "WKRP in Cincinnati."

Arthur says this after station employees toss live turkeys out of a helicopter as a station promotion. 9. Sarah Josepha Hale, editor of "Godey's Lady's Book" and "Ladies' Magazine." 10. Demeter, goddess of agriculture.

Artist has overcome obstacles

Persistence has paid off for a Maryland Heights woman with an artful dream.

Carolyn Goodman, 56, has met some obstacles along the way, but has always been interested in art.

"I've been drawing all my life," she said. "It just came naturally to me. It's something you're born with."

Goodman said when she was younger she would lay on the table all the crayons she wanted to use for a picture, and her mother would cringe at the colors she had chosen.

"But when I was finished, she would be amazed at how I had made the colors work together," she said.

Goodman said her interest in art came from her grandfather, Berndt Bengtson.

He was born in Sweden and painted houses for a living. She said he was a marvelous artist even though he never

"My grandfather died when I was 12," she said. "He was going to teach me to paint."

Goodman considers her grandfather her hero, and still uses him as a source of inspiration.

"He's still here, because art is something that's in your blood."

Goodman, like her grandfather, never studied art, but did study fashion design at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond before she transferred to Washington University. She didn't earn a degree, but she never gave up her desire to learn about art.

She got her first art experience at a Stix Baer and Fuller department store.

"I went to the art director and told him, 'I'll sweep the floors if I have to, but please give me a job in your art department,'" Goodman said.

The art director, Joel Kurtz, did give her a job, and to help her with her art, he would give her pictures of people to draw and then critique them.

"He would tell me I had done a good job on the face, but I needed to work on the hair," she said. "Or he would say that the hair was better, but I should work on the hands."

Goodman said one particular day she was to meet with Kurtz, but he was gone. The secretary said another art director could meet with her.

So, Goodman, reluctantly, went to meet with him instead.

HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27

You'll feel like you can go out and change the whole world while the moon travels with the sun, Mercury and Venus in Virgo. Take advantage of your open, receptive mind and learn a new skill today. Mars in Leo could help to elevate this earthy mood you're in if the serious, Virgo-laden skies get to be too much.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 25). You are the bright spot in a group and will be praised for your outstanding contribution this year. Start visualizing the improved life style you deserve. October and November are lucky, bringing terrific people into your life. One solid contact leads to another; soon, life glows with possibilities. Love in December is precious; treat it gently at first. Taurus and Pisces are exquisite loves.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Financial perks make a position more attractive—think about your choices this week end, and make a move on Monday. Singles date non-stop or travel with special sweet hearts. Cancer is especially amorous.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Assuming a less frantic pace actually helps you accomplish more. Romance makes a daily duty far more attractive. There are creative benefits if you lend a helping hand this afternoon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Invest more in a talent or skill — you could be a champion. An old friend turns up once again, but your feelings may have changed. You encounter romance while pursuing a study or expanding your social realm.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Make time in your busy schedule for some cultural pursuits — you just may fall in love over new cuisine or multicultural art. Don't be worried about meeting a financial deadline; just do the work and things fall into place.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). It's time for you to get in the car and just go! On the road, concerns will dissipate, especially romantic ones. A change of environment refreshes your outlook. Act on a whim, and you get lucky.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Things go better when you are in charge — of course, uncooperative people make your job more difficult. Steady, persistent effort wins out, however. You are especially sexy tonight, so make a date with (See HOROSCOPE, Page 11D)

He flipped through my sketches and drawings like they were trash, and when he was done he looked up and said, 'Have you ever thought about being a waitress?'

Goodman didn't give up though; she continued to practice her art, and a few years later she applied for a job with a small ad agency. She took her portfolio to the agency, but the art director wasn't there. So, she left her portfolio for him to review.

"He called me after reviewing my portfolio and said, 'I've never seen such natural talent in my life. You're hired. Start on Monday,'" she said. "He didn't even know my name." Ironically, when she went to report for her first day of work, her new boss was the man that told her she would never be more than a waitress. "What if I had listened to him the first time?" Goodman said. "I would have never realized my talent."

Goodman, who is currently unemployed, went on to become an advertising illustrator for Famous-Barr and most recently worked as a graphic designer for Venture Stores.

Area's largest theater opens at Jamestown Mall

The early reviews are favorable about North County's newest cinema.

"I'm pretty excited about this opening, and I've been looking forward to it," said Tony Darnell of Florissant, one of the first advance-ticket buyers last week at the Jamestown 14 Cine.

St. Louis-based Wehrenberg Theatres last week officially opened the new cinema complex, in the Jamestown Mall at Lindbergh and Old Jamestown Road.

"We're very excited about this because it's a part of town that generally doesn't get a lot of attention, and we're hoping this will be good for the community," said Kelly Hoskins, spokeswoman for Wehrenberg Theatres.

Vicki Meyers of Alton was in line with her daughter Angie Bailey and her two grandchildren to see the premiere of "Rug Rats" at Jamestown.

"We love going to the movies in the afternoon, especially with the kids," said Meyers. "This is just great. We shop over here frequently anyway, and there's no stadium seating theaters this close to us."

Bailey agreed. "I think the stadium seating is good for us because we can set the kids on our laps and not worry about them being in anybody's way," she said.

The benefit of stadium seating is that seats are positioned on levels of stairs so the view of the screen is not obstructed.

"This is something we've offered at different theaters for

Auction set for Sunday

Allan Auction and Real Estate Appraisal will have an auction at 11 a.m. Sunday in the parking lot of Camelot Bowl, located at the corner of Belt Line and Keebler roads in Collinsville.

Items up for auction include cabinets, workbenches, Craftsman Skil Saws, a battery charger, a small air compressor, hand tools, a welder's helmet, a Sears timing light, a Coleman lantern, canteens, a small organ, kitchen appliances, a VCR, bicycles, snow shovels and yard tools.

over a year now and we've had terrific feedback on that," Hoskins said.

The theater also has multi-stationed concession stands and a 2,500-square-foot game area.

Hoskins said each theater room includes a state-of-the-art, Dolby digital sound system.

"This is the largest mall theater in the St. Louis area, and it is absolutely beautiful," Hoskins said.

Cecelia Cartwright and Maria Maias of Alton were in line to buy tickets for the re-release of "The Wizard of Oz."

"We go to the movies pretty often, but we don't get much of a chance to use stadium seating like this," said Cartwright. "From what I can see the theater looks great, too."

Maias said she is particularly fond of classics and likes to go to the movies in the afternoon.

First features include such blockbuster hits as "The Wizard of Oz," "Enemy of the State" and "Meet Joe Black," starring Brad Pitt.

"We will also feature the new preview trailer of the film, 'Star Wars, Episode One,' among many others," Hoskins said.

Theater rooms are equipped with high-backed, plush bucket seating and chairs with cup-holder armrests.

The 50,000-square-foot facility is between Sears and Dillard's inside the mall. Construction on the project began in late spring.

Wehrenberg operated a twin-screen cinema in the mall about three years ago.

Lights will brighten Laclede's Landing

By Clayton Berry
Staff writer

St. Louis Port Authority officials are completing an agreement that would allow the city to install lighting on a new trestle along the riverfront near Downtown.

Terminal Railroad completed the new elevated structure along Leonor K. Sullivan Boulevard last year. The trestle, which carries rail traffic, spans from the Eads Bridge to Carr Street in the Laclede's Landing area.

Nick Nichols, operations manager for the port authority, said the estimated cost of the project is $55,000. The accent lights would shine down from the structure onto the concrete piers below. Nichols said the illumination provides more than increased safety.

"It will add to the ambience of the area," Nichols said.

The lights will have a sensor to turn on at dark. Crews could install the decorative fixtures before Christmas, weather permitting.

Alderman Phyllis Young, D-6th Ward, sponsored legislation that made the agreement possible. The measure was approved Nov. 20 and a contract is about to be signed between the city and Terminal.

"Our goal is to draw more people to the riverfront," Young said.

"It's going to enhance the attractiveness of the riverfront to have it lit."

The lights likely will be in place before the President Casino on the Admiral moves upstream.
